Funeral of Dr. Delouest

He was buried from St. Philip's church, Father Botaloccio officiating. The eminent divine preached a very earnest and sincere sermon, paying a very touching tribute to the memory of the deceased, dwelling at length upon his virtues and drawing a lesson from his death and applying it to 'public square," which seems to be those who were present. He said that life is but a passage-way, and that death is merely a transition from one condition to another, from struggles to calm and peaceful rest.

> Dr. Delouest was an old land mark of this city, having resided here continuously since the early 70's. He was for a long while a druggist, and as a prescriptionist had few superiors. He was very attentive to business and accumulated quite a comfortable fortune. He was a native of France, but came to this country early in life. He was never married. He leaves a brother, to whom he was very de voted, a sister in New York, and a nephew, who is attending school at

ville, (Ala.) Daily:

The greatest lecture ever delivered in Huntsville was that of Fred Emerson Brooks at the opera house. It was a magnificent effort. Time and again the great poet-humorist was applauded, and the two hours passed by was grand, his oratory unsurpassed, his diction pure, his logic clear and his humor irristible. For two hours Mr. Brooks recited his own poems now with a tenderness that was touch ing indeed, then with a patriotism and humor that captured the entire audience. There was not a dull sentence from beginning to end and it Mr. Brooks ever honors Huntsville with another of his inimitable entertainments he will want for room. He deserves the credit accorded him last night-"the equal of Govenor Bob Taylor." He is indeed a poet, an orator, a genius.

The Sumter Tragedy.

John Henry, the murderer of Lee Graham, was legally executed in Sumterville Friday afternoon. It was perhaps the swiftest case of legal punish. ment that has ever been meted out in the annals of this state. It has scarcely been a month since the murder was committed, and within a week after the murderer was caught he was tried convicted and hanged.
